MAYOR URGES TRAINING

Parks, Squares and Playgrounds Given Over to Pagants and Dances.

The spirit of 1916 lived with that of '76 yesterday in a celebration of Independence Day that was carried into every nook and corner of the city. During all the weeks that the hundreds of men and women have been laboring to make a success of the programme laid out by the Mayor's committee the preparedness note has been constant. So yesterday wherever the flag waved and the Declaration of Independence was read and the gift of speech was exhibited the thought was driven home that the people of our time have a responsibility not less than that of 140 years ago.

Taken by and large it was a celebration such as Mayor Hays had dreamed when he conceived the idea of festivity with safety and sanity. The weather was ideal. There were solemn ceremonies, historical pageants, games, dances, song festivals, fireworks and illuminations and bands playing everywhere, but there was less noise, fewer accidents, and the long files of young men in khaki were missing.

The celebration began as usual with the raising of the flag at the old blockhouse in Central Park by the Washington Continental Guards in full uniform. Mrs. C. L. Morehouse read the Declaration of Independence as she has done at 4:30 o'clock on the morning of July 4 for the last seventeen years. At noon a salute of forty-eight guns was fired at Governors Island.

Mayor Pleads for Preparedness.

Mayor Mitchell's Independence Day address, delivered yesterday from the steps of the historic City Hall, was a solemn warning that danger lies along the way of faith without works, of opportunity without obligation, of liberty without vigilance. He pictured America edging toward a mighty conflict in behalf of the things that have made her great without the things at hand which will insure victory in that struggle. He strongly urged the universal training of citizens to make effective our security at home and abroad.

"These last two years," he said, "our people, under the compulsion of world circumstances, have been engaged in a reappreciation of the meaning of American ideals to America and to the world. It has been brought face to face with the problem of making those ideals secure at home and practical abroad. Never was a time in the history of the United States when these things came more directly to us than now. Never was a time when the people were united in such a way as to be able to insure the destinies of the republic."

For preparedness was also made by Comptroller Prendergast, George Gordon Battle, as chairman of the Mayor's Independence Day committee, outlined the historical significance of the place which the city occupies and commented upon the great and beneficial change that had taken place in the character of Fourth of July celebrations. A special request was made for the signing of the Declaration of Independence was presented by students of the Congress of the Bronx Forum. In the evening a patriotic song rally—music by the band and song by the people—was directed by Henry T. Fleck as chairman of the committee on music.

Dances in Washington Square.

Drills and folk dances by school children were the feature of the exercises at Washington Square, where a great crowd gathered. Borough President Marks read a telegram sent by President Wilson to Mrs. Frank McWaters, who headed the committee in charge.

A special performance was given at the Globe Theatre for 500 or more children, who gathered in Times Square to hear a patriotic address by Borough President Marks.

Frank P. Walsh, who was chairman of the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, was the chief speaker at the Labor Forum's celebration in Union Square. Mr. Walsh denounced the privately owned press, asserting that it was controlled by the few and managed by the people of the country until the "peaceful revolution" to which the poor and oppressed of the world look forward has come.

HIS FACE IN 'G. W.'S' PLACE.

Mayor Griffin of Hoboken has his picture on Fourth Avenue. The face of the Hon. Patrick R. Griffin, known as Paddy Griffin, Mayor of Hoboken and boss of the Democratic machine, took the place of "The Father of His Country" on all the billboards in the city in connection with the celebration of Independence Day. Just why Mr. Griffin was so singularly honored no member of the celebration committee could explain.

BRAVES HEAR ORATORY.

Tommy Hall, as usual, rings with patriotism. Although the silver tongue of Thomas F. Smith, secretary of the Society of Tom Wilson, slipped the name of Woodrow Wilson as he read the replies to resolutions to participate in the annual celebration of Independence Day at the Wigwam in Fourteenth street yesterday, it was a reference to the President that rang forth from the satchels, braves and plain folk there assembled the night of many outbursts of enthusiasm.

Representative P. D. Decker, Missouri did it in the course of one of the "short talks" when he said: "I am glad we have a man in his head for the poor Mexican people, who have to go to Mexico for the sake of justice and for the sake of humanity. We won't do it to get some more oil wells and more mines. We won't do it to get some more money. We are not going to ask Congress to declare war to increase the value of anybody's ranch in Mexico."

But while everybody cheered that sentiment there were not lacking comparable manifestations of approval when George E. Chamberlain, Senator from Oregon and chairman of the military affairs committee of the Senate, declared that unless the spirit of '76 gets more attention in this country today that the gathering of the Declaration of Independence was read by Charles F. MacLean, formerly Justice of the Supreme Court. Representatives An-

SCHOOL CHILDREN DRILL.

Ten Thousand See Fete in City College Stadium.

The earth shook on Washington Heights yesterday afternoon and 10,000 watchers laughed and clapped their hands as 2,000 boys and girls of the city schools marched, drilled, danced and played games in the stadium of the City of New York. Many of the onlookers who were alternately amused, thrilled and moved by the colorful spectacle were overcome by the miles away. They were teachers, members of the National Education Association and a general throng.

A couple of hundred boys from Public School 26 in Manhattan danced the Kachinaka. They went through the vigorous gymnastics of that characteristic Russian performance with an enthusiasm that caught hold of the whole assemblage.

At the commencement there was a salute to the city's heroes by a color guard from Public School 40, followed by a military drill by boys from Stuyvesant and Boys High schools. They had been instructed in armories after school hours by officers of the United States army and of the National Guard and were simply fellows who had cared enough about the training to seek it of their own accord. Major-General Appleton reviewed them.

Then the girls played baseball and punch ball, skipped ropes and ran relay races. The boys played basketball, baseball, handball and competed in broad and high jumps. There were sixty and hundred yard dashes and everything wound up in a miniature park fete with Maypoles, folk dances and a general frolic.

But that was not quite all. At the close every man and woman, boy and girl present stood and sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

LIFE SAVERS CELEBRATE.

Capt. Stern's Volunteer Corps Has an Interesting Day.

Capt. John Stern of the Broome street Volunteer Life Saving Corps yesterday held a combined celebration of Independence Day and the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the corps.

At the foot of Broome street and the East River he entertained more than 200 children and dozens of grownups. Daylight was set aside for the youngsters and they began to arrive early. At intervals of every half hour the Broome Street Junior Life Savers organized years ago by the captain, would leave the pier, returning with a large consignment of hungry youngsters.

One of the most interesting features was First Assistant Owey Coyle, who modestly admitted that he had directed the decorations. From the loyal Owey Coyle, Capt. Stern's good work was heard. Years ago when he was newly wedded the neighborhood frequently was shocked by the drowning of some child. A great favorite with the "kiddies," Capt. Stern decided to organize his own corps and remedy the conditions along the wharves. Fifteen children have been saved, and as soon as each child in the neighborhood is able to walk Capt. Stern teaches him to become an expert swimmer.

200,000 OUT IN BROOKLYN.

Parade Epidemic Cuts Off Some of the Celebrations.

Brooklynites celebrated Independence Day with music, song and speaking in the many parks and playgrounds of the borough. More than 200,000 persons, it was estimated by the police, participated in the various festivities. Because of the parade epidemic, however, the celebration was called off in more than a dozen places. Thousands of electric bulbs illuminated the Martyrs' Monument in Fort Greene Park, Borough Hall, the Soldiers and Sailors' Arch and several of the parks.

The largest celebration was held in Prospect Park, where about 10,000 gathered. Andrew McLean, Congressman from the city, presided. The celebration was held in the park, and the speaker, Congressman McLean, presided. The celebration was held in the park, and the speaker, Congressman McLean, presided.

ZOO HAS OLD TIME FOURTH.

Hattie, the Elephant, Leads Chorus of Animal Celebration.

Human beings were not the only celebrators of Independence Day in the city yesterday. In the Central Park zoo under the watchful eye of Head Keeper Bill Snyder the animals demonstrated to the satisfaction of all that they are not lacking in patriotic spirit.

American flags festooned over all doorways and cages gave the zoo a truly holiday aspect and presided at the celebration. The animals were organized in a parade, and the parade was led by Hattie, the elephant. From the lion and tiger house came a lion with a shaggy mane, a goat, a zebra, a llama, a bird, a chicken, a jackal and all the beasts of various habitats added their quota to the celebration. The animals were moved to expression.

BRIAND PAYS HONOR TO VICTOR CHAPMAN

French Premier Is Chief Guest at Fourth of July Banquet in Paris.

PARIS, July 4.—Premier Briand was the principal guest at the Fourth of July banquet given to-night by the American Chamber of Commerce. In offering a toast to the United States and President Wilson the Premier said:

"The Sons of the American Revolution, thrilled to the depth of their souls, feel instinctively that the present conflict is the last and most terrible convulsion of the age long struggle between liberty and tyranny. They know that the Allies look forward to the dazzling promise of the full emancipation of humanity and the absolute respect of national aspirations and desires. They are writing in their blood the charter that shall free the world."

"I cannot forget that your volunteers are associated with the heroic Chapman, living symbol of the American idealism, have carried the love of our cause to the extent of giving their lives for it."

A Chapman memorial service at the American church was attended by members of the American colony, including officials of the embassy and consular staffs and by three of the American volunteers who were present.
